

While investigating the Peoples Mutual Life Insurance Association and League of the Insurance Companies, the London Knabes had some connection with the Louisville promoter John Tevis, who tried to get control of that concern to make it the insurance company of the United States. The London Knabes had been in the insurance company of Canada, and that through Tevis the Knabes had become interested in that Canadian company. What the department here learned suggested that the Tevis interest in the Surety Company's affairs and this was undertaken in connection with the Maryland department. Besides the revelations that the London Knabes had made considerable loans to personal friends of the Knabes on doubtful collateral. The New York department therefore late in the investigation had been eliminated from the company that the impairment be made good without any reduction of capital and that enough new money be put in to give a surplus of $1,000,000. That was the London Knabes' acquisition of the majority stock of the company. The first requirement, but the stockholders reduced the capital

John McDuckie, 36 years old, a union leader, was killed. With a bullet in his back he was found lying in a pool of blood by a policeman attracted by the report of the shot. All the other participants fled, and it was not until late tonight that six non-union employees of the transit authority were arrested at their car barn at Frankford and Lehigh avenues.

Among them was Victor Farrell, 21, of Washington, who was arrested before Magistrate Scott at the Central police station to-day confessed to having fired the shot that killed McDuckie. He said he did not wait long to await his turn to be shot.

Others held as witnesses Hugh R. Thomas and Eugene Vintners, Washington; Samuel Woodard, Baltimore, and Joseph B. Woodard, Sacramento.

Washington, who also was arrested, was discharged.

The fight, which is said to have grown fiercer as the night against the non-union men, occurred shortly after 1 o'clock, following just after the men had put their arms in the barn.

men and women of the United States as forcibly as I could the lesson that they can find no exercises which are so great and so profitable as walking. The pleasure and which brings so many benefits to the mental and physical system as the simple one of "taking a walk." If I can do this I shall be more than repaid for the efforts I have made in establishing this record in walking from Los Angeles to New York City, a distance of nearly 3,000 miles, in less than eighty days.

Gentlemen, your appreciation goes to convince me that I have not been unsuccessful, and in taking this view your testimonial brings an added reward. I can only say I thank you very much indeed yours,

EDWARD PATTON WESTON.
